WE HUSTLE DIFFERENT

Mama Sol

THE VOICE

Two-time cancer survivor Mama Sol, is not only a walking miracle, she exhales miraculous language.

BRIEF BIO

Flint, Michigan's own Mama Sol has crafted language for some of the biggest brands in the country from the iconic introduction of FUBU to our culture to her present voicing for the Detroit Pistons 2022 season. She's opened for musical greats the likes of Robert Glasper, Rakim, Rapsody, Talib Kweli, and Mos Def now known as Yasin Bey, to name a few. She's also blessed stages with some of this country's greatest minds including Representative Maxine Waters, Dr. Umar Johnson, Dr. Eric Thomas and Dr. Francis Cress Welsing. She speaks, performs, and pens lyric in the way in which few can believe, but at the end of the day she lives for what she lives for.

She lives to write. She lives to teach. She lives to flow verbally over beautiful beats. She lives to tell the story about how she faced cancer twice and won the battles; how she wakes up every morning different than before...but she's up. She's thriving. But most of all she lives for the one title that feeds her soul....Mom.

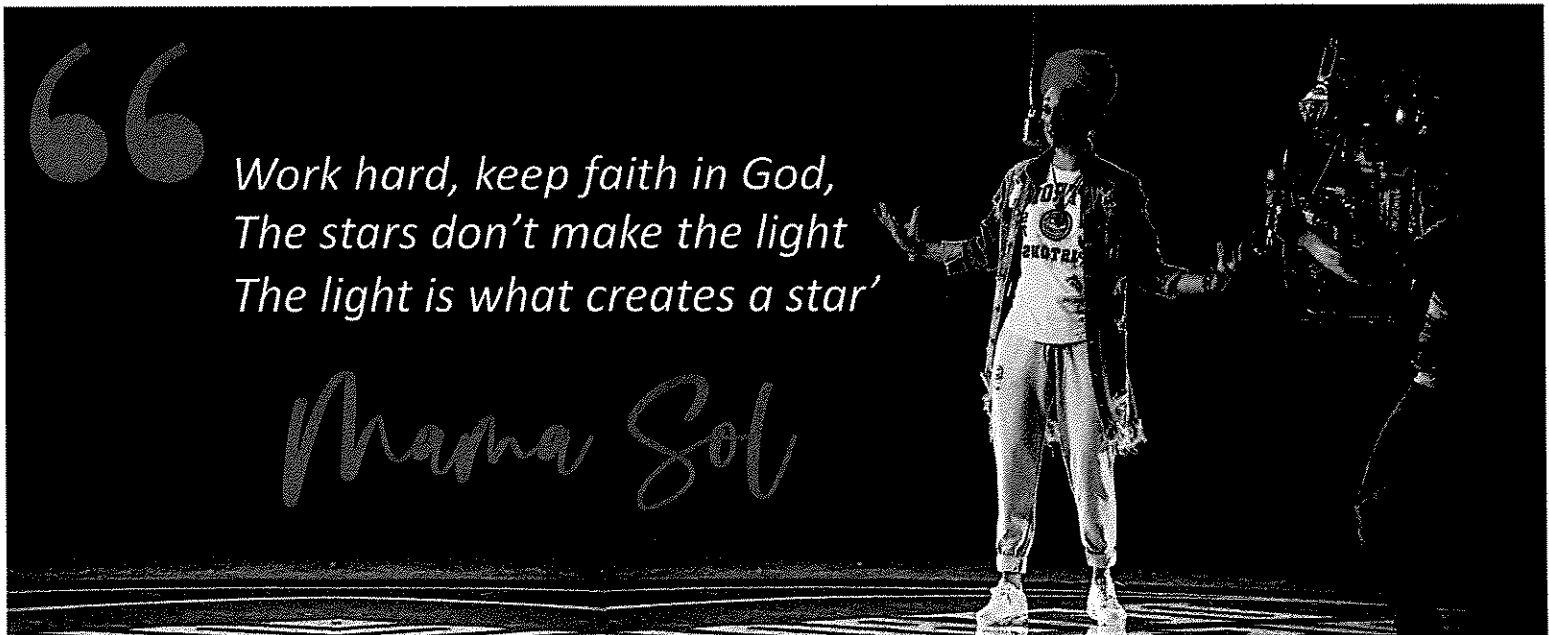

The world got a glimpse of that love when a clip of Mama Sol and her son Wasir went viral. Thanks to ABC's popular video show, Right This Minute, the clip of Mama Sol and her son taking a drive while vibing and reciting her lyrics was profiled. In the clip, Mama Sol delivers the verses painting in vivid picture the experience of raising her son as a single mother and dropping jewels on what that looked like from her eyes. As she flowed from one word to the next, her son chimed in every other beat; a moment on video that couldn't have been more beautiful had there been a production crew and soundstage. It was the essence of poetry in motion. The power of language set perfectly within the power of love. Mass media fell in love with that dynamic and gave it platform for everyone to see. News in that moment that warmed hearts and reminded us that some of us have great stories to share and some 'would-be' complexities of life can often times bear incredible fruit.

The bond with her son is a priceless one and not only evidence of how she raised him in perfect love and included him in her creative process, but how she taught him. She taught him because she teaches us all. That's what she does; probably the reason teaching sits boldly on her resume as one of her accomplishments, in the literal sense.

If we do a deep dive into her teaching history, we find the stuff of legends. Engaging her students, the way only she can, the students at an Afrocentric charter school in Detroit, Michigan lovingly called her Mama Sol. She promised her students she would keep that name for life and Mama Sol never makes a promise she doesn't keep.

That synergy with students and gift of educating kids finds her a regular presence in the arena of higher education. She's performed at University of Michigan, Ohio State University, University of Wisconsin, Florida International University and more. Her constant appearance in this sector allows the audience to receive a masterclass in creative expression and communication; an education these privileged students couldn't have gotten from anyone else.

Suffice it to say that Mama Sol has contributed greatly to the cultural fiber of the genre and more specifically to her communities throughout Michigan. Constantly in high demand 'Sol' also counts artistic institutes and creative spaces as consistent platforms she's graced. The likes of Detroit Institute of the Arts, Flint Institute of the Arts, Charles H. Wright Museum of African History and The Bronx Museum.

Today, Mama Sol and her son lives in Flint, Michigan. She continues to travel the country delivering awe-inspiring performances for audiences young and seasoned. She continues to connect with souls and teach the world that it can have and should have better air to breathe.
