Charis Lee is a native of Flint, Michigan and graduated from Carman-Ainsworth High School. In her senior year Charis joined the United States Army Reserve earning a Human Resources Certification before enrolling at Michigan State University "MSU". Charis attended MSU in East Lansing, Michigan where she earned a bachelor's degree in International Relations with a Specialization in Peace and Justice Affairs from James Madison College. While earning her degree, Charis worked in financial services and continued serving as a Human Resources professional in the Army Reserves until she was honorably discharged.

After earning her degree, Charis provided business solutions for several corporations in Michigan and Texas. Subsequently, Charis earned a Juris Doctor with cum laude honors from Thurgood Marshall School of Law in Houston, Texas. While in law school, Charis was a judicial clerk at the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission "EEOC" and held corporate legal internships with Altair Engineering, Inc. in Troy, Michigan and USAA, Inc. in San Antonio, Texas.

Upon graduation from Law School, Charis provided advice and training on labor and employment issues, was a member of the corporate arbitration team and served as Arbitration Lead for the Marietta site. Charis most notably served as Chief Negotiator for the 2019 IAM Security Guards Agreement which was accepted and ratified. While working for Lockheed, Charis represented several pro-bono clients in civil and criminal matters.

Charis relocated back to her home town of Flint, Michigan in October, 2018. She accepted an Attorney-Advisor (Assistant Director) position at Michigan State University College of Law and was influential in the career and professional development of the next generation of lawyers. In August 2019, Charis founded the Flint Professional Development Institute which helps residents of the Flint area with professional development, charitable giving, and other life skills. In January, 2020 Charis ran for the 34th House District State Representative seat which serves the Flint Area.
